Help prevent disaster before it starts

Damages resulting from flood and extreme temperature changes can destroy inventory, disrupt business and create a dangerous working environment. Count on Honeywell's environmental sensors to help safeguard your business, your employees and everything you've worked hard for.

The sensors are ideal for commercial kitchens, restrooms, stockrooms, server rooms, basements and any facility where it is critical to monitor environmental conditions. They can notify you when detecting freezing and predetermined high temperatures and the presence of flood—helping to avoid disruption of business, create safer working conditions and reduce the risk of liability, inventory loss, food spoilage and other potential dangers.

You can even opt to receive these alerts via your PC, laptop, cell phone, BlackBerry®, iPhone®, iPad® or any compatible mobile device when using Total Connect™ Remote Services, which let you control your security system, view live video and know what's going on in your business from any location.
